Washington, D.C. - The Harvard Journal of Hispanic Policy (HJHP), a student-run Latino policy review at the Harvard Kennedy School (HKS), announced the contributing authors and titles in Volume 28 of its flagship journal. Four Congressional Hispanic Caucus Institute (CHCI) Graduate Fellowship alumni are featured as contributing authors. The contributions were researched, written and presented during their CHCI fellowships and cover the topics of higher education, affordable housing, economic policy and the environment.

Founded in 1985, HJHP is HKS's oldest student-run journal and one of the premier publications in the nation focused on public policy issues that impact Latina and Latino communities in the United States and Puerto Rico.

Below is a list of CHCI's featured submissions:

Agua es Vida: The Invisibility of the Latino Population in Drought Assistance and Innovation

by Alesandra Nájera

(Commentary) Examining Promise Zones: Prioritizing Affordable Housing During Revitalization

by Cheye-Ann Corona

(Featured Article) The Earned Income Tax Credit Conundrum: The Unintended Exclusion of Latina/o Children

by Israel

Nery (Featured Article) College Knowledge as Cultural Capital: Reshaping Parental Involvement to Increase College Attainment by Braulio Salas (Featured Article)

CHCI's Graduate Fellowship Program is designed for exceptional emerging Latino leaders who want to immerse themselves in a specific public policy area. The paid, nine-month fellowship provides young leaders with valuable work experience, access to a powerful Latino network, and a chance to showcase their public policy knowledge on Capitol Hill.
