Washington, D.C. — GALA Hispanic Theatre is pleased to present its 8th annual international film festival, REEL TIME AT GALA. Running November 20-24, the festival will screen seven films: six contemporary films (all D.C. premieres) by directors who have garnered international attention, and one classic comedy with one of Mexico's most iconic actors. The festival will include post-screening discussions with directors, actors, and film experts and host several receptions.

Hugo Medrano, GALA's co-founder and producing artistic director, says: "In this 8th edition of our film festival REEL TIME AT GALA, we introduce you to innovative new films with socially-conscious and provocative content bravely explored by directors and producers. And, in our festival's tradition, we will celebrate the Golden Age of Mexican Cinema with a screening of one of the best films from the memorable character Tin Tan. This year we are particularly honored to have support from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts & Sciences, which will provide audiences more opportunities to engage with directors, producers, and actors from Latin America in a variety of post-performance talks and receptions."

The festival is curated by Carlos Gutiérrez, co-founder and executive director of Cinema Tropical, a New York-based non-profit media arts organization that has become the leading presenter of Latin American cinema in the United States. Cinema Tropical brought U.S. audiences some of the first screenings of films such as Amores Perros and Y Tu Mamá También.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 23, 2019 (BOLIVIA & BRAZIL)

4:00 p.m. — ALGO QUEMA (STILL BURN) D.C. Premiere!

Directed by Mauricio Alfredo Ovando, Bolivia, 2018, 77 min. Documentary. In Spanish with English subtitles

Alfredo Ovando Candia was a military general and Co-President of Bolivia whose political and military service connected him to the largest massacre of workers in the country's history and the military campaign in which Che Guevara was killed. In this courageous documentary, his grandson incorporates archival footage, home movies, and interviews with relatives to study the many profiles of his grandfather. He shows how collective and personal memories are created from—and ultimately shape—a complicated legacy.

"This is a film about the infinite images of my grandfather, captured during his dictatorial government in Bolivia during the 1960s. My family's version is confronted with the official history: The massacres of miners, the nationalization of oil, Che Guevara and the Teoponte guerrilla. As in the movies of celluloid, every time I stop to look at an image more carefully, something burns inside me." —Director Mauricio Alfredo Ovando

Winner of Best Director and FIPRESCI awards at the Buenos Aires International Festival of Independent Cinema.

Post-screening Q&A with director Mauricio Alfredo Ovando.

Keeping this to herself, she strikes up a friendship with her half-sister, a girl her age who is also named Irene. What follows is a delicate dance of identity, betrayal, and self-discovery as Irene must manage her own duplicitous existence.

Winner of Best First Feature and Best Cinematography Awards at the Guadalajara Film Festival.

Post-screening Q&A with director Fabio Meira.

SUNDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 2019 (MEXICO)

4:00 p.m. — EL REY DEL BARRIO (THE KING OF THE NEIGHBORHOOD)

Directed by Gilberto Martínez Solares, Mexico, 1949, 100 min. In Spanish with English subtitles.

Starring Germán Valdés and Silvia Pinal.

In this classic comedy, Mexican icon “Tin Tan” (Germán Valdés) leads a gang of small-time con artists whose crimes include conning wealthy women by acting as musicians. Things get complicated when one of his would-be victims (Silvia Pinal) falls in love with him and is hell-bent on marrying him.

The persona of Tin Tan was intimately linked to Hollywood through his trademark character of the pachuco. With his zoot suit, swagger, streetwise sensibility, bilingual wordplay and embrace of swing, Tin Tan became the cinematic embodiment of a cultural figure forged between two nations.

This movie is considered one of the top five comedies in the Spanish language by many critics.
